End Overdose Together is a student-led grassroots movement to train and mobilize students to lead trainings in opioid overdose recognition and Narcan administration. Our trainings are available to all individuals and organizations; community centers, libraries, schools, police/fire departments, and businesses who are interested in being trained in opioid overdose recognition and prevention. After the training, we mail participants a FREE kit that contains Narcan and materials to safely administer it.

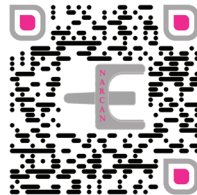

End Overdose Together is committed to ensuring that all people and organizations across the state of Pennsylvania are:

- 1. Educated about the biological basis of addiction and
- 2. Aware, able, and ready to deliver Narcan when faced with an opioid overdose.

“ When dealing with an epidemic like the opioid crisis, life-saving medication should be a part of every first aid kit and readily available. We encourage everyone – business owners, members of the general public, loved ones affected by substance use disorder, and individuals suffering from the disease – to equip themselves to respond in an emergency. **”

– DDAP Secretary Jennifer Smith
